Review

"With the passion and urgency the subject deserves, Crucifying America is an unabashed wake-up call to a nation that has allowed religious conservatives to hijack public policy." -David Niose, author of Nonbeliever Nation: The Rise of Secular Americans

"Crucifying America is an effective surgical strike on the runaway theocrats and their well-financed assault on the American political system. Powerful stuff." - Seth Andrews, author of Deconverted: A Journey From Religion to Reason

"In Crucifying America, there's no sacred cow nor bullshit CJ doesn't eviscerate with his keystrokes. He's the voice of the next generation of atheists. God help us." -Tina Dupuy Syndicated Columnist.

"In Crucifying America, Werleman makes a compelling case for how the "unholy alliance" between the Christian Right and corporate America has negatively impacted economic and social policy." -David G. McAfee, author of Mom, Dad, I'm an Atheist

Crucifying America is a terrifying examination of how the partnership between corporate money and the Christian Right is taking control of the nation, one state legislature, and one Governor's mansion at a time. With the backing of hundreds of millions of dollars in corporate money, the Christian Right has become the main strain of the Republican Party. This pro-corporate religious driven agenda is transforming America's secular state into a tyrannical plutocratic sponsored theocracy.

This unholy alliance has ushered in economic policies that have not only destroyed the middle class, but also allowed corporations to eliminate labor protection laws; destroy public education; repeal public safety nets; and pollute the environment, while allowing the Christian Right to mount crusades against science, gays, immigrants, Muslims, women, atheists, and secularists.

For atheists and progressives, this book is an inoculation shot against the drug of gradualism.

This is the book the Christian Right should fear, and Michael Moore wishes he wrote

By Dan Arel

There is a battle raging in the United States. The fight over secular versus sectarian values. The Christian right is fighting to create the perfect theocracy while the secularists, well, they are busy removing ten commandment displays and suing cities over Christmas parades.

At least that is what author CJ Werleman sees and highlights in his new book Crucifying America: The Unholy Alliance Between the Christian Right and Wall Street, and it is hard to argue with him.

Politicians across the nation from Senator Wendy Davis standing up for women's rights, or Senator Elizabeth Warren standing up against the Wall Street cronies, are taking the fight we should all be fighting to the government. Yet atheists and secularists seem to get wrapped up in winning small battles that do not change the direction of the country. As the Christian right becomes a small and smaller percentage of the country, we continue to allow them to be the dominant faction.

Werleman's book is a call to action. Asking atheists what they plan to do to end the Christian's right attack on our rights, to healthcare, to public education, to minimum wage and their calling for the destruction of unions and even, a women's right to choose on abortion issues or same-sex marriage issues.

While we are liking memes on Facebook that state we support marriage equality, the Christian right are writing bills and raising money to end it wherever possible. While we are worried about the names of holiday parades, the Christian right is defunding public schools and funneling money into publicly funded yet privately owned charter schools, leaving millions of minority students behind. There is a war happening, and the Christian right is running a distraction play right in front of us and we the moths to the flame. From the very onset of the Supreme Courts decision on Citizens United, the Christian right has enacting policy after policy to further their agenda.

Crucifying America is a book that needed to be written, and wants to be read, it is the book Michael Moore only wishes he could write. This is a political action book for those who do more than watch The Daily Show or simply watch MSNBC. This is a book based in cold hard data laying out in plain details the war that the secular world is ready to lose if they do not act now.

Attacking capitalism at its core, dismantling the entire libertarian agenda, and removing the curtain from all of the rights political distractions, Werleman reveals the real trouble the right is in and what we can do to knock it out once and for all. This book is the match needed to ignite the torch of revolution in the secular world and bring the fight to the Christian rights front door. The only question is, will you pick up the torch and burn that door down?

Mother fer...

By Matthew O'Neil, author

The title of this review was my line of thought throughout the majority of Werleman's piece. Not at the author, but at how outrageously blind our country, nay our citizens, have become. A book that ties together the historical "need-to-know" moments, in the same vein as Howard Zinn, and the blunt presentation of the audacity of the right, similar to "American Fascists". If you aren't outraged, then you are ignoring the problem!

Werleman shows, through carefully documented statistics, quotes, and polls, how the US has let the evangelical right, content with embracing ignorance and creating distractions to deter from the real problems we NEED to face, thoroughly penetrate us all from behind. Sans lube.

I'm so glad I read this book, and others should take the time to read this. As Werleman states in the beginning, we're winning the wrong wars. So let's arm ourselves with his insight and fight back!

A funny, masterfully written and important book

By Rex W. Huppke

CJ Werleman strikes out against the dangerous mix of politics and religion and deftly reveals where the GOP and the Christian Right are coming together to set a political agenda that favors the rich and the ideologically pure. With an acerbic - and often hysterical - wit, Werleman skewers many of the darker goings-on in American politics and, armed with brilliantly reported facts, makes it clear why this is an issue everyone should fear.

This is an important piece of work, written fearlessly and with great humor. It goes far beyond the standard talking points and blather of the right and left and gets at the inner workings of the influential people and groups who speak love-for-country as a means of hiding their own self interests. And Werleman pulls no punches in dealing with those who falsely claim a mantle of moral superiority while clinging to the purity of "good old days" that never were.

Read this, and encourage others to do the same. It may well help Americans recognize that, sadly, much of what's being said under the name of God in politics is little more than self-serving chicanery.
